A MOVIE catering firm which has provided meals for screen stars including Russell Crowe and Daniel Craig has relocated its national headquarters.

Chorley Bunce, which has worked on Brideshead Revisited, the BBC's Merlin series and the Fifth Element, is moving its operations to Pannal Business Park, Harrogate.

The film location catering company has bases in London, Manchester and the Isle of Man and has just completed a contract working on Ridley Scott's up-and-coming box-office release Robin Hood.

Dave Chorley, co-owner of Chorley Bunce, which employs more than 30 people, said: "We decided to move to Pannal Business Park as it is set in a great location. It has plenty of parking, with good access for our large vehicles and, being next to the train station, makes commuting for staff so easy.

Nick Prescott, of the site's letting agent, Gent Visick, said: "This latest let brings another asset to the increasing diversity at Pannal Business Park. The site offers warehousing, manufacturing and office space, complemented by its ample parking, security and easy access to major transport links."

The move is just one in a string of new lets at Pannal Business Park which is located on the site of the former Dunlopillo factory, which went into administration in 2008.
